Big questions, through the eyes of a computer scientist....

computer programs:

How does a computer program know when to stop running? How does one know if a program will ever stop running?